

The Malmesbury Jackdaw Receives a Donation from Malmesbury League of Friends

We were absolutely delighted recently to receive a donation from Malmesbury League of Friends.

The money will help us meet the costs of increased circulation, particularly to younger residents and, in this edition, we're pleased to feature another local youngster who is displaying the attributes required to achieve great things.

MLOF Chairman David Hide said, "We were impressed with the plan by the Jackdaw's team to increase its circulation, especially to young readers. They're being encouraged to take up membership of the Boxing Club or other similar groups and so keep them occupied in healthy and constructive activities. We are happy to support this worthy objective."

Jackdaw editor Andy Griffin commented: "We're very grateful to MLOF for this generous donation, which will assist in our quest to continue providing the town with a community magazine that's both informative and entertaining. Through increased circulation, we particularly hope to encourage young Malmesbury residents to become involved in worthwhile activities. The Malmesbury Jackdaw will endeavour to highlight opportunities and activities that may be of interest to all and especially young readers. We remain very keen to hear from younger residents with their perspective on local issues"
